This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. 1827. 285 The Spartan Isadas.

The Thebans had crossed the Eurotas and attacked Sparta, a city without walls and undefended by nature, except in some elevated places where the sacred buildings stood. It was thus in imminent danger of being taken, when Isadas, son of Phoebidas, rushed naked from the bath into the battle, armed only with a sword and spear. His youth and beauty, added to his being entirely without defensive arms, inspired both the assailants and the defenders with the idea that he was some Guardian Deity, perhaps Castor: his courage completed the illusion. He struck down a man at every blow, and although always engaged where the danger was most pressing, he received no wound. —Plutarch.

In the last he lay
Reposing from the noontide sultriness,
Couched among fallen columns in the shade
Of ruined walls that had survived the names
Of those who reared them; by his sleeping side
Stood camels grazing and some goodly steeds
Were fastened near a fountain; and a man
Clad in a flowing garb did watch the while,
While many of his tribe slumbered around.

1830. 99 Una delivering the Red Cross Knight from the Cave of Despair. "In heavenly mercies hast not thou a part, etc."
233 A contadina family, returning from a festa, prisoners with banditti.

They were dressed in their gala costume, a tambourine hung on the caparisoned ass, and Gaetano had ornamented his hat with one of the little pictures of the Madonna, which are distributed at her festival. As no ransom could be expected from peasants, who were scarcely worth robbing, the banditti generally kept such prisoners only till the station was abandoned for a new one; in order that no intelligence of their movements might transpire. But in the present case, the youth and beauty of Theresa filled her parents with agonizing apprehensions; the glances of the brigand who guarded them, though he appeared less ferocious than his companions, were too often directed towards the shrinking girl, even for his office of sentinel to be well performed; while the deep carouse of the rest of the band seemed to promise little interference of reason and humanity.

The only hope of the captives was, that while the same position thus continued to be occupied, a well-known spot from the circumstance of a print of the Madonna being stuck on a tree, those who had witnessed their disaster, and had escaped in time, would be enabled to send the soldiers, quartered at Rome, to their assistance.

1842. 548 Cromwell discovering his chaplain, Jeremiah White, making love to his daughter Frances.

The most notable suitor of Frances Cromwell was Jerry White, the Protector's facetious chaplain. There is some doubt whether the joyous lady was merely amusing herself with the amorous protestations of the reverend puritan, or whether she was actually infected by him with the tender passion. That Cromwell entertained some anxious doubts on the subject is certain from his causing them to be carefully watched by one of his spies. The person thus employed, one day hurried into the Protector's presence with the information. The Lady Frances and his spiritual adviser were together in the private apartment of the lady. Cromwell hastened to the spot, and, unluckily for the parties, discovered Jerry on his knees, kissing his daughter's hand.

1843. 641 Scene from "Woodstock."

At this moment the apartment opened, and a gentlewoman entered, who from her resemblance to the General, although her features were soft and feminine, might be immediately recognized as his daughter; she walked up to Cromwell, gently but firmly passed her arm through his, and said to him, "Father, this is not well—you have promised me this should not happen."

1846. 490 Buckingham rebuffed.

Miss Stewart, with her sweet eye, little Roman nose, and excellent taille, is now the greatest beauty I ever saw, I think, in my life. Unfortunately her head was as empty as its shape was classical; her amusements as frivolous as her face was beautiful. Her favourite game was blind man's buff; and another of her fancies was building castles with cards, a pastime with which she nightly amused herself, while the largest sums were being lost in her apartment.

No one could erect these paper castles with more dexterity than the Duke of Buckingham; he had also a fine voice; and as the spoiled beauty delighted in his songs he became a great favourite with her. At last he took advantage of her partiality to make love to her; he soon discovered, however, how little impression he had made on her heart, and, indeed, met with rather a disagreeable rebuff.

23d, etc. . . . Thence to the King's house and there saw "The humourous Lieutenant." A silly play, I think; only the spirit in it, that grows very tall, and then sinks again to nothing, having two heads breeding upon one; and then Knipp's singing did please us. Here, in a box above, we spied Mrs. Pierce; and going out, they called us, and so we staid for them; and Knipp took us all in, and brought to us Nelly, a most pretty woman, who acted the great part of "Cœlia" to-day very fine, and did it pretty well; I kissed her and so did my wife, and a mighty pretty soul she is. We also saw Mrs. Ball, which is my little Roman-nose black girl, that is mighty pretty. She is usually called Betty, etc.

1843. 451 A monk preaching.
75, Connaught Terrace.
1846. 680 Molière and his housekeeper Laforet.

He is said to have been accustomed to read his comedies before performance to a favourite servant or housekeeper, named Laforet, and when he perceived that the passages which he intended to be humorous and laughable had no effect on her, he altered them.

1848. 198 Surprising intelligence.
1849. 862 Harold, the Earl, and the good Alred. Harold after escaping from the power of William the Norman, by whom he has been ensnared into taking an oath he dares not keep, in his distraction and despair, flies for consolation to his aged counsellor and friend Alred, Archbishop of York.

Before this holy cross, kneel, O my son, with me, and pray that a life of truth and virtue may atone the madness of an hour. So by the crucifix knelt the warrior and the priest.

1850. 496 Tartuffe, Laurent (his valet) and Dorine, etc.
1851. 794 The Taming of the Shrew. "The meat was well, if you were so contented, etc."
1853. 327 The Emperor Charles V at the Monastery of Yuste, August 31, 1558.

The sunshine again tempted him into his open gallery. As he sat alone he sent for a portrait of the Empress, and hung for some time, lost in thought. . . . Thus occupied he remained so long abstracted and motionless that Mathisio (his Flemish physician), who was on the watch, thought it right to awaken him from his reverie.—W. Stirling.

1857. 517 Tartuffe at supper, etc.
1858. 169 Argan feigning death.
1859. 263 Richelieu and Anne of Austria.

Anxious to cure the Cardinal of his passion, Anne exacted as a proof of sincerity, that Richelieu should dance a saraband in her presence in the costume of a Spanish jester. . . . A muffled figure appeared, unfolded an enormous mantle, and the Cardinal, Prime Minister of France, stood before the wife of its monarch, in a light vest and trousers of green velvet, with silver bells at his garters and castanets in his hands, etc. etc.

1860. 555 Aurora Leigh.

Father, then, and child we lived among the mountains many years . . . and old Assunta, to make up the fire, crossing herself, whene'er a sudden flame, . . . made alive that picture of my mother on the wall, etc.—Mrs. Browning.

1833. 976 The Death of Pliny the elder during the first recorded eruption of Vesuvius, August 24, A.D. 79, as related by his nephew Pliny the Consul.

> Pliny, being at the time in command at Misenum in the Bay of Naples, had his attention called by the mother of the younger Pliny to the extraordinary appearance of Vesuvius; he left the palace and went on to a terrace, the better to observe the progress of the phenomenon. He embarked in a light vessel, leaving his nephew behind to finish a writing for him . . . he was suffocated by a too near approach to the cause of that great calamity, etc.—Pliny's Epistle to Tacitus.

1845. 579 The origin of the Guelph and Ghibeline quarrel in Florence.

> In the year 1265 a Guelph noble of the upper vale of Arno, named Buondelmonte, who had been made citizen of Florence, demanded in marriage a young person of the Ghibeline house of Amidei and was accepted. While the nuptials were in preparation, a noble lady, of the family of Donati, stopped Buondelmonte as he passed her door, and bringing him into the room where her women were at work, raised the veil of her daughter. Here, she said, is the wife I had reserved for thee. Like thee she is Guelph; whilest thou takest one from the enemies of thy church and race. Dazzled and enamoured he accepted the proffered hand.

1847. 204 The invention of the stocking loom.

William Lee, of St. John's College, Cambridge, was, about the year 1589, expelled from the University for marrying contrary to the statutes. Having no fortune, his wife was obliged to contribute to their joint support by knitting, and Lee, while watching the motion of her fingers, conceived the idea of imitating those movements by a machine.

1848. 282 The deathbed of Robert, King of Naples, surnamed the Good and the Wise.

Perceiving that he drew near his end, he assembled his nobles and dictated his will in their presence. By this will, he made Joan, his granddaughter, his heir, and her sister Mary was to succeed her. . . . After this Robert desired they would bring to him the two young persons he had named for his successors. He addressed himself to them with the greatest dignity and tenderness, discovered to them the dangers which threatened them, and informed them in what manner they ought to conduct themselves towards their enemies, their friends and their subjects. . . . He died, says Petrarch, as he lived, acting and speaking like himself. He chose to die in the habit of the third order of St. Francis, an act of zeal at that time in fashion.

1849. 23 Religious controversy in the time of Louis XIV.

The King had declared his intention to employ only good Christians in public situations, meaning Roman Catholics, and the most tempting encouragement was held out to such as should set a public example by abjuring their Protestant tenets. Accordingly it was not uncommon for an intending convert of rank to invite some leading Protestant clergyman to meet some leading Catholic in his house, there to debate respecting their differences, to satisfy the mind of their host which religion was preferable.

1860. 153 The Tuileries, June 20, 1792.

They brought the Queen's children to her, in order that their presence, by softening the mob, might serve as a buckler to their mother. They placed them in the depth of the window. They wheeled in front of this the Council table. Preserving a noble and becoming demeanour in this dreadful situation, she held the Dauphin before her, seated upon the table. Madame was at her side.

A young girl, of pleasing appearance, and respectably attired, came forward and bitterly reviled in the coarsest terms L'Autrichienne. The Queen, struck by the contrast between the rage of this young girl and the gentleness of her face, said to her in a kind tone, "Why do you hate me? Have I ever done you any injury?" "No, not to me," replied the pretty patriot, "but it is you who cause the misery of the nation." "Poor child!" replied the Queen, "someone has told you so, and deceived you. What interest can I have in making the people miserable? The wife of the King, mother of the Dauphin, I am a Frenchwoman in all the feelings of my heart as a wife and mother. I shall never again see my own country. I can only be happy or unhappy in France. I was happy when you loved me." This gentle reproach affected the heart of the young girl, and her anger was effaced. She asked the Queen's pardon, saying, "I did not know you, but I see that you are good."

1862. 135 Invention of the combing machine.

This ingenious machine, now in general use in every silk, cotton, and woollen manufactory in Europe, which, to quote the words of Mr. Hawkshaw, acts with almost the delicacy of touch of the human fingers, cost its inventor, Joshua Heilman, of Alsace, a considerable fortune in fruitless efforts to bring it to perfection.

Disheartened and nearly destitute, he returned to his native place to visit his family, and whilst sitting by the fire, happening to turn round, perceived one of his daughters combing her hair, when an idea struck him. He had found that which was wanting, and to this simple incident was indebted for the perfecting his invention.

1821. 261 Cleopatra's arrival in Cilicia.

She sailed along the river Cydnus in a magnificent galley; the stern was covered with gold, the sails were of purple, and the oars of silver; these, in their motion, kept time to the music of flutes, and pipes and harps. The Queen, in the dress and character of Venus, lay under a canopy embroidered with gold, while boys, like painted cupids, stood fanning her at each side of the sofa. Her maids, habited like the Nereids and the Graces, assisted in the steerage and conduct of the vessel. The fragrance of incense, vast quantities of which were burnt on the deck, was diffused along the shores, which were covered with people.

1826. 24 The choice of Paris.

The Goddess of Discord, incensed at not being invited to the marriage of Peleus and Thetis, threw into the assembly of the Gods who were at the entertainment, a golden apple, on which was inscribed "To the fairest." All the Goddesses claimed it as their own, but at last only three, Juno, Venus, and Minerva, wished to dispute their respective right to beauty, and the Gods, unwilling to become arbiters in an affair so delicate, appointed Paris, a Phrygian shepherd, son of Priam, to adjudge the prize. Each tried by promises and entreaties to gain the attention of Paris, and influence his judgement. After he had heard their several claims and 249 "Twas in the happy olden time, Before the birth of care or crime."

438 The Parting of Hero and Leander.

Hero was a beautiful woman of Sestos in Thrace, and priestess of Venus, whom Leander of Abydos loved so tenderly that he swam over the Hellespont every night to see her.

(Elected R.A.)

1828. 6 Guardian Cherubs, in which are introduced resemblances of the Lady Mary Agar and Hon. Charles Welbore Herbert Agar, infant children of the Earl of Normanton.

193 A composition taken from the following passages of the eleventh book of Milton's Paradise Lost. "When from the tents behold a bevy of fair women, richly gay, in gems and wanton dress, etc., etc."

357 Venus, the evening star.

1829. 16 Benaiah. "He slew two lion-like men of Moab."

31 Hero having thrown herself from the tower at the sight of Leander drowned, dies on his body.

1830. 37 The storm. "They cried unto Thee, and were delivered, etc."

124 Judith. "And anon after she went forth, and she gave Holofernes' head to her maid, and she put it in her bag of meat."

1830. 380 The dancer.

1831. 79 The maid of Judith waiting outside the tent of Holofernes till her mistress has consummated the deed that delivered her country from its invaders (see the book of Judith), forming the second and last pendant picture to the principal one. Painted for the Scottish Academy of Fine Arts in Edinburgh.

1831. 144 Nymph angling.

163 Window in Venice during a Festa.

170 Sabrina, from Milton's Comus. "Sabrina fair, listen where thou art sitting, etc."

411 The shipwrecked mariner.

1832. 196 "Fair laughs the morn and soft the zephyr blows . . . Youth on the prow and Pleasure at the helm, etc."

215 The destroying angels and dæmons of evil interrupting the orgies of the vicious and intemperate. A finished sketch of that class of composition called by the Romans "Visions," not having their origin in history or poetry.

360 Phædra and Cymochles, or the Idle Lake. "Along the shore as swift as glance of eye, etc."—Spenser's Faery Queene.

1833. 7 Britomart redeemes faire Amoret. "Ne living wight she saw in all that roome, etc."—Spenser's Faery Queene.

153 Hylas and the nymphs. "The nymphs of the river, enamoured of the beautiful Hylas, carried him away, and Hercules, disconsolate at the loss of his favourite youth, filled the woods and mountains with his complaints."

168 The lute player. "When with sweet notes I the sweet lute inspired, Fond fair ones listen'd and my skill admired."

424 Head of a philosopher; a sketch.

1834. 37 A portrait.

90 The Cardinal.

1835. 14 Preparing for a fancy dress ball.

1835. 36 Study of the head of a youth.
94 Venus and her satellites. "There beauty's lovely goddess smiles, etc."
154 Study from a young lady.
235 The Bridge of Sighs, Venice. Painted from sketches made from the Canal in 1823.

Just by the Bridge of Sighs, at the remote extremity of the narrow passage, over some scupper holes which descend to the water, is a strong iron bar fixed at each end into the wall; upon, and across this, the condemned was thrown, and his head severed from his body, unheard, unseen, save by the executioners and the dread eye of Heaven! at dead of night, a black gondola, like a dark spirit of the waters, glided silently to a little portal by the water's edge beneath—the body was conveyed to a distant part of the Lagune, and there thrown in. Near that spot the fishermen of Venice were forbidden, under the severest penalties, to fish.

287 The warrior arming.
310 Phædria and Cymochles on the Idle Lake. "And all the way the wanton damsel found, etc."—Spenser's Faery Queene.
325 Wood nymphs sleeping; satyr bringing flowers—morning.

1836. 82 A family of the forests. "They lived with calm untroubled mind."
96 Psyche having, after great peril, procured the casket of cosmetics from Proserpine in Hades, lays it at the feet of Venus, while Cupid pleads in her behalf.
167 Venus and her doves.

1837. 21 Samson betrayed by Delilah. "And when Delilah saw that he had told her all his heart she sent for the lords of the Philistines, etc."
122 The Sirens and Ulysses. "Next where the Sirens dwell you plough the seas, etc."
267 Mars, Venus and Cupid.
295 Adam and Eve at their morning orisons. "Lowly they bowed, adoring."

1838. 16 A bivouac of Cupid and his company.
46 The Prodigal Son. "I will arise and go to my father, etc."
97 A bacchante and boy dancing.
112 Il Duetto.
232 Miss Lewis in the character of a flower-girl.
420 The converted Jew.
490 Somnolency.

1839. 195 Diana and Endymion.

The fable of Endymion's amours with Diana, or the moon, arose from his knowledge of astronomy, and as he passed the night on some high mountains to observe the heavenly bodies, it has been reported he was courted by the moon.

241 Pluto carrying off Proserpine. "That fair field of Enna, where Proserpine gathering flowers, herself a fairer flower, by gloomy Dis was gathered."
460 The Lady Mayoress of York.

1840. 26 Andromeda: Perseus coming to her rescue.
30 Mars, Venus, and attendant derobing her mistress for the bath.
230 A subject from the parable of the Ten Virgins. "While the bridegroom tarried they all slumbered and slept, etc."

1841. 21 Group—morning.
136 The repentant prodigal's return to his father. ". . . Father, I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight, etc."
206 "To arms, to arms, ye brave!"
322 Still life.
379 Female bathers surprised by a swan.
519 David. "Awake, my glory! awake, lute and harp, etc."

1842. 6 A Magdalen.
26 Two of the modern time.
33 The dance. "A figured dance succeeds, a comely band of youths and maidens bounding hand in hand, etc."
39 One of the olden time.
437 The innocent and gay.

1843. 30 The Graces: Psyche and Cupid as the personification of Love, burning the arrows of destruction and trampling on the insignia of war.

The Charities and Gratiæ.—They presided over kindness and all good offices. They were generally represented naked, because kindnesses ought to be done with sincerity and candour. The moderns explain the allegory of their holding their hands joined by observing that there ought to be a perpetual and never-ceasing intercourse of kindness and benevolence among friends. Their youth denotes the constant remembrance we ought to have of kindnesses received; and their virgin purity and innocence teach us that acts of benevolence ought to be done without any expectation of restoration; and that we ought never to suffer others or ourselves to be guilty of base or impure favours.

44 The bather. "At the doubtful breeze alarmed."
79 The entombment of Christ.
169 "In the greenwood shade."
224 Still life.
389 Flemish Courtship.
505 The infant Moses and his mother.

1844. 123 The backbiter.
130 "Live while you live, the epicure will say, etc."
146 The Cardinal.
152 A subject from Comus; a portion of a scene described by the attendant spirit in the latter part of that poem. Painted the size of the intended fresco. "All amidst the gardens fair of Hesperus and his daughters three, etc."—Milton's "Comus."
265 "'Tis but a fancy's sketch."

109 Cupid interceding with his mother for Psyche.
185 Flower girl.
186 A Votive offering.
259 "Or like a nymph, with bright and flowing hair, Dance on the sands and yet no footing seen."

1846. 37 The grape gatherer.
166 Composition from Milton's Comus. "Circe with the Syrens three, amidst the flowery-kirtled Naïades."
200 The Choice of Paris. "Juno promised him a kingdom, Minerva military glory, and Venus the fairest woman in the world for his wife, etc.
254 The juvenile scribe.
264 The sea bather.
303 Still life.

1847. 123 Joan of Arc, on finding the sword she had dreamt of, in the church of St. Catherine de Fierbois, devotes herself and it to the service of God and her country.
124 Joan of Arc makes a sortie from the gates of Orleans, and scatters the enemies of France.
125 Joan of Arc, after rendering the most signal services to her Prince and people, is suffered to die a martyr in their cause.

Nowhere do modern annals display a character more pure, more generous, more humble, amidst varied reverses and undoubted victories, more free from all taint of selfishness, more akin to the champions and martyrs of old times.

339 Charites et Gratiæ.

The Graces, daughters of Venus, by Jupiter or Bacchus, are three in number: Aglaia, Thalia, and Euphrosyne. They were the constant attendants of Venus; and they were represented as three young and modest virgins, etc. See 1843, No. 30.

341 Queen Margaret's defiance of the Scottish Parliament.

After the death of James IV at Flodden, the Scottish Parliament sent four Lords to demand of his widow that her children and the Castle of Edinburgh should be surrendered to their keeping. She confronted them in the gateway of the castle, holding her eldest son (afterwards James V) by the hand; behind was the nurse with the other child, an infant, in her arms, while the Earl of Angus and a few attendants stood near the Queen. "Stand," she exclaimed to the lords as they approached, "declare the cause of your coming." When they had told their errand, she cried, "Down with the portcullis!" and immediately the iron rampart descended between her and the deputation. She then uttered a proud refusal through the grating, and the baffled lords retired.

1864. 576 Catherine Seyton.

Glancing her deep blue eyes a little towards Roland Græme, and observing the embarrassment under which he laboured, now shifting on his chair, and now dangling his cap, the whole man evincing that he was perfectly at a loss how to open the conversation, she could keep her composure no longer, but after a vain struggle broke out into an involuntary fit of laughter.—The Abbot.

> We have no church here but our log house, or the wild forest; and a grand kirk the forest makes—not even the old cathedral has such pillars, space, nor so high a roof; so we e'en take turns about on Sunday in reading the Bible. We are all well except Jeannie, and as happy as can be, considering the country and ties we have left. Poor Jeannie is sadly changed: her only song now is "Why left I my hame?" 1874. 227 Forgiven.
God be praised! Mary's come hame, she slipped in last Thursday. I nearly fainted . . . He treated her, she says, fair enough for a while after they were married, but the black scum floated at last. I have never liked to ask her what shifts she was put to. Her faither behaved well; he never said a word, but took up his hat and gaed away out. Ye mind he was whiles rather harsh wi' her. She has suffered sairly for her disobedience, poor lassie—but she 's hame now.

1836. 602 The coronation of King Robert Bruce.

Robert Bruce had been crowned King of Scotland on the 27th March, 1306, in the ancient abbey of Scone, by the Bishop of St. Andrews. The Scottish regalia, the regal mantle, the inaugural stone, with all the other attributes of royalty, had been carried off by Edward I. ten years before. Such pomp as could be obtained was provided by Bruce's adherents. The Bishop of Glasgow supplied him from his own wardrobe the royal robes, and a banner whereon the arms of Baliol were embroidered: a golden crown were furnished for the ceremony, and Bruce sate in the state chair of the Abbot of Scone. The Earl of Fife, to whom, as descendant of Macduff, the right belonged of placing the King of Scotland on the throne, was of the English party, and therefore absent from the ceremony. His sister, Isabella, Countess of Buchan, had a high and romantic admiration for Bruce: she secretly withdrew from her husband for the purpose of being present at the coronation, and arrived at Scone with a large and splendid train two days after it had taken place. She demanded that it should be repeated, and the hereditary right of her family in placing Bruce on the throne recognized. Bruce agreed to this, and on the 29th of March he was again crowned in the abbey, and placed in the regal seat by her.

1837. 509 La Journée des Dupes.

This day, one of the most celebrated in the history of France, was marked by the refusal of Louis XIII to dismiss Cardinal Richelieu, according to the promise made to his mother Mary de Medecis. The King strove in vain to reconcile the party, but Mary was inexorable, etc. The ultimate triumph of the Cardinal changed the destinies of many of the greatest people in France, who had considered it their policy to side with the Queen mother, whence the title of the day and of the picture.

1838. 502 Leonardo da Vinci expiring in the arms of Francis I.

1839. 427 The Conspiracy of the Pazzi, or the attempted assassination of Lorenzo de Medeci, surnamed the Magnificent, in the church of Il Raparala, Florence, 26th April, 1478.

Bernardo Bandini plunged a short dagger into the breast of Giuliano de Medeci. On receiving the wound he took a few hasty steps and fell, when Francesco de Pazzi rushed upon him with incredible fury and stabbed him in different parts of the body, continuing to repeat his strokes even after he was apparently dead. The priests who had undertaken the murder of Lorenzo were not equally successful. An ill-directed blow from Antonio Maffei, which was aimed at the throat, but took place behind the neck, rather roused him to his defence than disabled him. He immediately threw off his cloak, and holding it up as a shield in his left hand, with his right he drew his sword, and repelled his assailants.

1841. 1162 The Emperor Charles V picking up the pencil of Titian. (With a quotation in French.)

1842. 458 The trial of Charles I in Westminster Hall, January 27, 1648-9.

The picture represents the proceedings of the last day of the trial; and the moment chosen is when Lady Fairfax interrupted the court by exclaiming "Oliver Cromwell is a rogue and a traitor, and not a hundredth part of the people are in favour of the trial." Whereupon the Court called to the guard, and Colonel Axtell, their commander, ordered the men to advance and give fire into the box.

The principal figures are portraits (fifty to sixty in number), collected from private sources and the best authorities.

1845. 620 Sir Roger de Coverley, Will Honeycomb, Sukey, etc., in the Temple Cloisters.

The footmen returned with "no coach to be had." Sir Roger as the better man took the lady by the hand, leading her through all the shower, covering her with his hat, and galanting a familiar acquaintance, through rows of young fellows who winked at Sukey in the state she marched off, Will Honeycomb bringing up the rear.

620 The old noblesse in the Conciergerie during the first French Revolution.

Confined in separate cells at night, they met in the common hall of the prison during the day. Here they carried on the gay life of the Court and the château with all their national vivacity. They held their little receptions, at which they appeared elegantly and richly attired. Musical parties, coquetting, and gambling were their occupation all the day, which they pursued with an eagerness in proportion to the trouble they sought to drown, even while the officer of the Revolutionary Tribunal day after day brought the list of those to be executed the following morning.

1852. 1269 The martyrdom of Anne Askew, who in the reign of Henry VIII was burnt for maintaining the principles of the Reformation.

Before she had fully recovered from the torture which had been severely applied to her limbs, she was carried on a chair to Smithfield, and chained to the stake. At the conclusion of the condemned sermon, preached by Dr. Shaxton, who had himself suffered much in the cause, but escaped the flames by recantation, she once more refuses pardon on the condition of acknowledging the doctrines of popery, and clings to the scriptures. The awful signal is then given by the Lord Mayor, who is accompanied by the relentless chancellor Wriothesley, and with three other victims, faithful to their belief, is consigned to the flames.

1861. 981 Oliver Goldsmith; design for a bronze statue for Trinity College, Dublin.
1053 Lieut.-General Sir James Outram, Bart., G.C.B.
1058 The Cashmere bastion, Delhi, September the 14th, 1857.
Model of part of a monument erected in Lisburn Cathedral, Ireland, to the memory of Brigadier-General John Nicholson, C.B., who led the first column of attack, and fell mortally wounded in his victorious efforts to regain possession of the city from the mutineers. Owing to there being no satisfactory portrait of the General at the time of his death, the design was made in conformity with a request that he should not be represented in it. In the background is the English church or church of St. James, which stands immediately within the walls, and received considerable damage from the fire of the besiegers.

The beautiful Adelaide was betrothed to Cominges, but sacrificed by her father to a rich and jealous noble. Cominges, under the character of an artist, introduced himself into her house. She implored him to leave her. While on his knees bidding her a last farewell, they were surprised by the husband, who fights with Cominges. Adelaide in her attempt to part them is wounded by her husband, who then is slain by Cominges. He fled believing Adelaide to be dead, sought refuge as a monk of La Trappe. Adelaide recovered, and went forth to seek Cominges, and discovered him by his singing, among the monks. She became, in disguise, a noviciate, and everywhere followed his steps, but concealed from him that she was Adelaide. The austerity of the life hastened her dissolution, but being permitted before her death to break her silence, she exclaimed, "Cominges!" and died.

1816. 303 Saving the crew of the brig "Leipzig," wrecked on Yarmouth bar on the 7th December, 1815.

After an attempt with one of the largest pilot-boats to effect a communication with the stranded vessel having failed, from the violence of the wind and heavy sea, and no probability of saving the lives of the crew, Lieutenant Woodyer instantly came down to the pier with the mortar, and succeeded in throwing the line over the vessel's topsail yard, to which, by great exertion of the crew, they made the line fast to a hawser, in doing which one man was washed overboard and drowned; which hawser was hauled on shore to the Pier head. Lieutenant Woodyer fired another shot and threw the second line over the same topsail yard, to which he made fast a saddle made of plaited rope, with a large leaden thimble in it, putting on the hawser with a tail block, and rove a line as a whip, to haul the saddle backward and forward on the hawser, having first attached a tally to it, on which were directions for the crew (who were obliged to take shelter in the main top from the fury of the storm); on their hauling the saddle to them, and agreeably to directions, they made the hawser and tail-block fast to the mast-head, when one man got into the saddle at a time, and was safely hauled on shore, by which means the master, two mates, and seven men were saved.

1816. 316 Saving the crew and passengers from the brig Providence, wrecked off Winterton, on the 15th of April, 1815.

On the rope being projected over the vessel (which was 150 yards from the shore) the master, William Field, secured it and immediately hawled a sufficient quantity on board for the bit to return to the shore, and with it enclosed himself and daughter by a clove-hitch; and while in the act of handing it to his crew for the same purpose, a tremendous sea broke over the vessel, carrying him and the girl overboard; the people on shore instantly hawled them through the surf in safety to land, without the slightest injury. The rope was afterwards hawled back by the persons on board, who, consisting of four men and one boy, came in the same way by it, just before the vessel went to pieces.

1841. 900 A portrait.
1842. 454 A scene from the Vicar of Wakefield.
It must be owned that my wife laid a thousand schemes to entrap him. . . . Then the poor woman would sometimes tell the Squire that she thought him and Olivia extremely of a size and mould, and would bid both stand up to see which was the tallest.
1843. 601 A scene from the Merry Wives of Windsor, Mistress Anne Page with wine, Mistress Ford and Mistress Page following. "Nay, daughter, carry the wine in, we'll drink within, etc."
1844. 328 One of the interviews that took place between John Knox and Mary Queen of Scots, respecting her marriage with Darnley.
At these words the Queen began again to weep and sob with great bitterness. The superintendent, who was a man of mild and gentle spirit, tried to mitigate her grief and resentment; he praised her beauty and her accomplishments, etc. During this scene, the severe and inflexible mind of the Reformer displayed itself; he continued silent, and with unaltered countenance, until the Queen had given vent to her feelings.
491 The Squire describing some passages in his town life—a scene from the Vicar of Wakefield.
He could repeat all the observations that were retailed in the atmosphere of the play-houses, and had all the good things of the high wits by rote, long before they made their way into the jest-books.

355 A scene from the Spectator.

I could not forbear discovering greater expressions of mirth than ordinary on the appearance of this monstrous face, under which, notwithstanding it was made to frown and stare in a most extraordinary manner, I could still discover a distant resemblance of my old friend. Sir Roger, on seeing me laugh, desired me to tell him truly if I thought it possible for people to know him in that disguise. I at first kept my usual silence; but upon the knight's conjuring me to tell him whether it was not still more like himself than a Saracen, I composed my countenance in the best manner I could, etc.

1851. 204 Hogarth brought before the governor of Calais as a spy.

Hogarth has run a great risk since the peace; he went to France, accompanied by some friends, and was so imprudent as to be taking a sketch of the drawbridge at Calais. He was seized and carried to the governor, where he was obliged to prove his vocation by producing several caricatures, etc., such as would by no means serve the purpose of an engineer. He was told by the governor that, had not the peace been actually signed, he should have hung him immediately on the ramparts.—Horace Walpole.

336 Pope makes love to Lady Mary Wortley Montagu.

Her own statement, as to the origin of the quarrel, was this: That at some ill-chosen time, when she least expected what romancers call a declaration, he made such passionate love to her, that in spite of her utmost endeavours to be angry and look grave, provoked an immediate fit of laughter: from which moment he became her implacable enemy.

It was related how Claude Duval, the French page of the Duke of Richmond, took to the road, became captain of a formidable gang, and had the honour to be named first in a royal proclamation against notorious offenders; how at the head of his troop he stopped a lady's coach, in which there was a booty of four hundred pounds; how he took only one hundred, and suffered the fair owner to ransom the rest by dancing a coranto with him on the heath.—Macaulay.

When the attack was advanced to this point the world will naturally enter into the reasons of Mrs. Wadman's next stroke of generalship: which was to take my uncle Toby's tobacco pipe out of his hand as soon as she possibly could; which under one pretence or other, but generally that of pointing more distinctly at some redoubt a breachwork in the map, she would effect before my Uncle Toby (poor soul) had well marched above half a dozen toises with it, etc.

1867. 132 King Charles the Second's last Sunday.

I can never forget the inexpressible luxury and prophanenesse, gaming and all dissoluteness, and as it were total forgetfullnesse of God (it being Sunday evening) which this night se'nnight I was witnesse of; the King sitting and toying with his concubines, Portsmouth, Cleaveland, and Mazarine, etc., a French boy singing love-songs in the glorious gallery, whilst about twenty of the greate courtiers and other dissolute persons were at basset round a large table, a bank of at least £2,000 in gold before them, upon which two gentlemen who were with me made reflexions with astonishment. Six days after, was all in the dust.—Evelyn's Diary.

1868. 87 Before dinner, at Boswell's lodgings in Bond Street, 1769. Present, Johnson, Garrick, Goldsmith, Reynolds, Murphy, Bickerstaff, Davies and Boswell.

Garrick played round Dr. Johnson with a fond vivacity, taking hold of the breasts of his coat, and, looking up in his face with a lively archness, complimented him on the good health which he seemed to enjoy; while the sage, shaking his head, beheld him with a gentle complacency. One of the company not being come at the appointed hour . . . Goldsmith, to divert the tedious minutes, strutted about bragging of his dress, and I believe was seriously vain of it, for his mind was wonderfully prone to such impressions. "Well, let me tell you," said he, "when my tailor brought home my bloom-coloured coat he said, 'Sir, I have a favour to beg of you, when anybody asks you who made your clothes, be pleased to mention John Filby at the Harrow in Water Lane.'"—Boswell.

After years of hopeless attachment to Swift, Vanessa wrote to her rival, Stella, asking the nature of her connection with him. That lady replied that they were married, and indignantly handed Vanessa's letter to the Dean, who, to quote Scott's words, "in a paroxysm of fury, rode instantly to Marley Abbey, the residence of Vanessa. As he entered the apartment, the sternness of his countenance struck the unfortunate Vanessa with such terror that she could scarce ask whether he would not sit down. He answered by flinging the letter on the table, and, instantly mounting his horse, returned to Dublin. When Vanessa opened the packet she only found her own letter to Stella. sit up by the body in the Banqueting House at Whitehall. As they were sitting there very melancholy at about two o'clock in the morning, they heard the tread of somebody coming slowly up the stairs. By-and-by the door opened, and a man entered very much muffled up in his cloak. He approached the body, considered it very attentively for some time, and then shook his head and sighed out the words "cruel necessity." He then departed in the same slow and concealed manner as he had come in. Lord Southampton used to say that he could not distinguish anything of his face, but that by his voice and gait he took him to be Oliver Cromwell.

With like protestations Ravenswood placed his portion of the coin opposite to his heart.

275 Dr. Johnson's tardy gallantry.

"When Madame de Boufflers was first in England," said Beauclerk, "she was desirous to see Johnson. I accordingly went with her to his chambers in the Temple, where she was entertained with his conversation for some time. When our visit was over, she and I left him, and were got into Inner Temple Lane, when all at once I heard a noise like thunder. This was occasioned by Johnson, who, it seems, upon a little recollection had taken it into his head that he ought to have done the honours of his literary residence to a foreign lady of quality; and eager to show himself a man of gallantry, was hurrying down the staircase in violent agitation. He overtook and conducted her to her coach. His dress was a rusty brown morning suit, a pair of old shoes by way of slippers, a little shrivelled wig sticking on the top of his head, and the sleeves of his shirt and the knees of his breeches hanging loose. A considerable crowd of people gathered round and were not a little struck by this singular appearance."—Boswell.

On the 23rd of August, 1582, the Earl of Gowrie invited the King to his castle of Ruthven, under the pretext of hunting. He was joined by the Earl of Mar, Lord Lindsay, the Tutor of Glamis, and other noblemen. When the King saw so many persons gather round him, whom he knew to be of one way of thinking, and that hostile to his present measures, he became apprehensive of their intentions, and expressed himself desirous of leaving the castle. The nobles gave him to understand that he would not be permitted to do so; and when James went towards the door of the apartment, the Tutor of Glamis, a rude, stern man, placed his back against it, and compelled him to return. Affronted by this act of personal restraint and violence the King burst into tears. "Let him weep on," said the Tutor of Glamis fiercely; "better bairns weep than bearded men." —Scott.

1872. 42 King Charles I leaving Westminster Hall after sentence of death had been passed.

As he went through the hall there was another cry for justice and execution. Here, says Whitelock, we may take notice of the abject baseness of some vulgar spirits, who, seeing the King in that condition, endeavoured, in their small capacity, further to promote his misery, that they might a little curry favour with the present powers, and pick thanks of their then superiors.

643 Naseby.

It was on this high moor-ground, in the centre of England, that King Charles, on the 14th of June, 1645, fought his last battle; dashed fiercely against the new-model army, which he had despised till then; and saw himself shivered utterly to ruin thereby. . . . Prince Rupert, on returning from his plunder, finds the King's infantry a ruin; prepares to charge again with the rallied cavalry; but the cavalry too when it came to the point broke all asunder—never to reassemble more.

1822. 890 Elevation of the monument to be erected on Capital-Square, Richmond, to the memory of General Washington, by the state of Virginia, North America.

1823. 666 Scene in Virginia.

The natural bridge is the most sublime of nature's works; its proportions, ascertained by Mr. Jefferson since the publication of his notes, are height 213 feet, breadth of the arch 90 feet, breadth of the stream beneath, called Cedar Creek, 50 feet; the rock over which the road leads 80 feet, thickness of the rock at the summit of the arch 40 feet. Though the sides of the bridge are in some parts with a parapet of fixed rocks, yet few men have the courage to look over the abyss. You involuntarily fall on your hands and knees to peep over it. It is impossible for the emotions arising from the sublime to be beyond what they are on viewing it from below. This bridge is in Upper Virginia, about 180 miles from Washington city. —Jefferson's Notes on Virginia.

1869. 880 The interview of St. Augustine and King Ethelbert.

The meeting must have been remarkable. The Saxon king, with his wild soldiers round, seated on the bare ground on one side. With a huge silver cross borne before him, and beside it a large picture of Christ painted and gilded after the fashion of those times, on an upright board, came up from the shore Augustine and his companions, amounting altogether to forty. They sat down at the King's command, and the interview began. Neither, we must remember, could understand the other's language. But the priests, whom Augustine had brought from France, now stepped forward as interpreters, and thus the dialogue which followed was carried on much as all communications are carried on in the East.

the "Catastata"; and the others, being interrogated, confessed. But when it came to my turn, my father appeared on the spot with my infant and implored me: "Have pity on thy babe!" And Hilarianus, the procurator: "Have pity on the white hairs of thy father, and the infancy of thy child. Sacrifice for the welfare of the Emperors!" I replied, "I will not." Hilarianus: "Art thou then a Christian?" and I answered, "Yes, I am a Christian!" And as my father would have drawn me away Hilarianus ordered him to be driven off. Then sentence was pronounced, and we were condemned to the beasts, and with hearts full of joy we returned to our prison.

1871. 134 Louis XVII and the sparrows in the Temple.

Permitted once more to breathe the air of heaven on the summit of his prison, the child, supported by his keeper (Lasne) and leaning against the wall, would remain long hours watching "his birds" —as he was wont to call the sparrows which came to drink out of a puddle in the worn pavement. It was only from this narrow platform, shut in on one side by the battlements with their closed embrasures, and on the other by the roof of the great tower, that he could see the sky, and it is easy to conceive how he loved the chirping of these little birds, and envied them their wings and liberty.

Thus he passed the day in joy until the evening, when the youth said to him, "Dear master, there is yet one sentence not written"; he answered, "Write quickly." Presently the youth said, "Now it is written"; he replied, "Good, thou hast said the truth, consummatum est . . ." and so, on the floor of his cell, he sang, "Glory be to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost"; and just as he had said Holy Ghost, he breathed his last, and went to the realms above.

1881. 311 Montrose at Kilsyth.

The covenanters, thinking that Montrose had passed the Forth more out of fear than design, their chief aim was to deprive him of all hopes of a retreat. In order to compass that, having drawn up their army, they began to march directly to the Royalists; which Montrose having perceived, and sensible that the good or bad success of the King's affairs in Scotland depended upon that day, he forgot nothing that a great general could do for encouraging his soldiers. He threw off his doublet, saying, "The cowardly rascals durst not face us till they are cased in iron; to show our contempt of them let us fight them in our shirts"; so, by that resolution to strike terror into the enemy and to let them know they were resolved either to conquer or die.

GRAEFLÉ, A. ..... Painter.
Rue Neuve Breda, Paris.

1851. 551 The triumph of Hermann; after the battle in the Teutoburg Forest.

In the year nine of the Christian era, Hermann (Arminius), chief of the Cheruskers, having formed a league between several German tribes for delivering Germany from Roman dominion, attracted the legions of Varus, the Roman Pro-consul, into the Teutoburg forest, and there, in a most terrible battle, which lasted three days, destroyed them completely. Varus ran on his own sword. Hermann thus became the liberator of the Germans.

479 The rescue. "A fisherman stood aghast, To see the form of a maiden fair Float by with a drifting mast."

1042 Three drawings from the poem of "The Blind girl of Castel Arille."

The story relates to an incident in village life, in which the bride, losing her sight, is not permitted by the family to marry; the bridegroom being inveigled into marrying another person, etc.

1853. 560 The incident which led to the great Reformation: Queen Catherine first discovers Henry's love for Anne Boleyn.

1054 Juliet and the friar. "Take thou this phial, etc."

1854. 502 Legend of the first efforts in printing. "It is stated, that a German merchant cutting some letters upon a tree discovered they would leave an impression upon paper."

1854. 594 The Requiem.

The last hours of Mozart were devoted unceasingly to his composition, all the efforts of his wife being unavailing to turn his attention from the work he loved so fervently.

1856. 598 A visit to the old soldier. "Then would he strip his sleeve, and show his scars."

1209 The lesson of mercy. The subject of the picture was suggested by the sight of some boys cruelly pelting a poor old man.

1857. 53 From the early life of Queen Elizabeth.

During the harsh imprisonment of Elizabeth in the Tower, the only kindness she received was from a little child, who used to run into her room every morning with a present of fresh flowers.

343 Peep-bo!!!

434 Lesbia.

621 May Gilzean, the outcast mother.

This poor girl, although discarded by her parents, was in reality married to Private Anderson, of one of Her Majesty's regiments of foot. Having no home, she brought up her child in the ruined corner of a cathedral. The boy afterwards became a celebrated Indian officer, and founded the great hospital and free school at Elgin.

1858. 367 Eugene Beauharnais refusing to give up his father's sword.

In 1793 an order was issued at Paris by the Convention to seize all the arms of the citizens. When the officers came to the house of Madame Beauharnais, whose husband had been killed during the reign of terror, her son, a boy of ten years old, sternly refused to give up the sword of his dead father. This incident being reported to Napoleon, was the cause of his introduction to the widow, who became afterwards the Empress Josephine.

1858. 460 The last trial of Madame Palissy.

Bernard Palissy flourished during the latter part of the sixteenth century. The dream of his ambition was the restoration of the lost art of porcelain enamel; in his efforts to realize it he reduced himself and his family to the greatest distress. On the eve of success, he was in want of a piece of gold to complete his experiment. After earnest entreaty his wife relinquished her wedding-ring.

1859. 416 The Eve of Monmouth's rebellion.

The Duke of Monmouth, irresolute and desponding to the last, was urged to his rash attempt on the throne of England by Lady Wentworth. His thoughts are directed to the axe being the probable end of his rebellion.

605 A legend of the White rose.

In the reign of Henry VII Perkin Warbeck, who called himself a son of Edward IV, was defeated, taken prisoner, and placed in the stocks, where he was forced to read his recantation. In Scotland he had been favourably received, and married a noble lady, who followed his fortunes to England.

1860. 249 A page from the Civil War.

Henrietta Maria, having pawned her jewels in Holland to raise reinforcements for her husband, on landing in England with the supplies, is fired upon by the troops of the Parliament, and forced to take refuge under a bank.

Condemned by the jealous rage of Henry VIII, escapes death by making her peace with the tyrant before the arrival of the officer with the warrant. "When beauty holds the lion in her toils, etc."

553 Secret intelligence—time of danger. During the middle ages, information of a dangerous nature was conveyed by writing, which showed no sign on the paper until held over the steam of hot water.

1865. 443 The last appeal to loyalty.

During the early days of the French Revolution, it was the great desire of the King and Marie Antoinette to gain over the leaders of the opposition to their side: one of the principal members was not to be moved, although the whole night had passed away in discussion and entreaty, when the Queen, as a last appeal, took him into the adjoining room, where her only son the Dauphin was asleep—the man regarded him sternly, and turned away.

replenishes his wardrobe at considerable expense, and appears in a professional wig and cane, purple silk small-clothes, and scarlet roquelaure—a fantastic garb. At length, on prescribing for a lady of his acquaintance, a warm dispute arose between him and the apothecary, when the Doctor stood up for the rights and dignities of his profession. His rights and dignities, wig, cane and scarlet roquelaure were of no avail. The lady sided with the hero of the pestle and mortar, and Goldsmith flung out of the house in a passion."

1891. 691 The attack on the Peiwar Kotal.

At daybreak, on the 2nd of December, 1878, General Roberts, after an arduous night march, assaulted the left flank of the Afghan army, which rested on a steep spur, defended by strong breastworks of felled pines and deodars. The 5th Goorkhas and the 72nd Highlanders led the assault with a dash and rapidity which drove back the enemy and turned his main position on the Peiwar Kotal.

1892. 14 The 92nd at Kandahar.

Sir Frederick Roberts's famous march from Kabul to Kandahar terminated in the complete rout of the Afghans before Kandahar on Sept. 1, 1880. The 92nd Gordon Highlanders were particularly prominent in this battle, and captured the main position of the enemy under a heavy artillery and rifle fire.

1893. 70 After the attack on Sherpur.

All the villages and enclosures between Sherpur and Cabul were entirely deserted. . . . Neither in the city, nor in the adjacent villages, nor on the surrounding heights, was a man to be seen. So hurried had been the Afghan dispersal that the dead lay unburied where they had fallen.

In the winter of 1786-7 Walter Scott, then a boy of fifteen, had his one meeting with Burns at Professor Ferguson's. The poet was affected to tears by some lines from Langhorne, under the print of a soldier lying dead in the snow, his widow and dog beside him. No one in the room knew by whom the lines were but the boy, and Burns rewarded him with a kind look and a word Scott never forgot.
